Living On-Campus At Storrs

- 63%, more than 13,000 undergrad students live on campus
- Up to 40,000 people on campus each day-faculty, staff, students, etc.
- High demand for housing, excellent community environment on campus

How you are assigned to a space

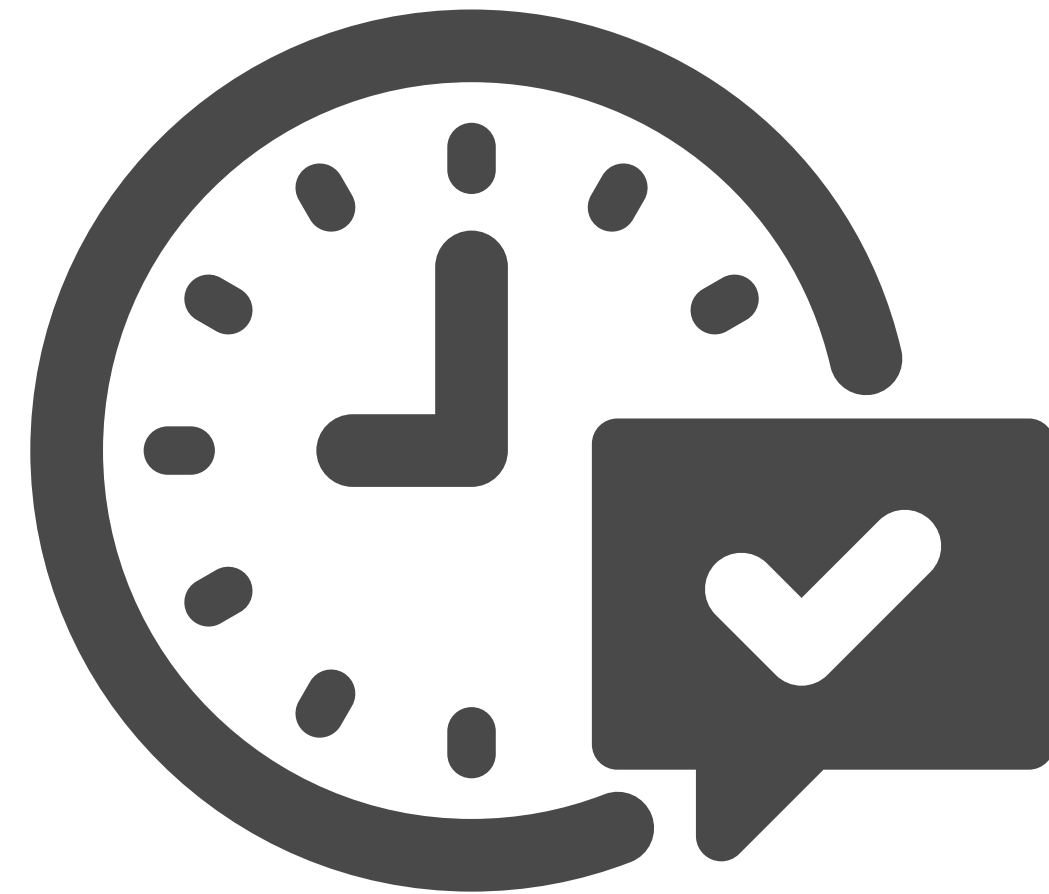

- In most cases, students select their own rooms.
- Qualified campus change student participate in room selection. To qualify for the selection process,

Campus Change students must:
 - Meet all deadlines and requirements
 - Be guaranteed housing
- A timeline and information about room selection is on our website.
- Campus Change students who don't meet the deadlines or who are not guaranteed housing are placed on the waitlist. These students are offered housing if we have space available.

A bit about room selection

- Selection times are generated based on class standing and credits earned. Students with the same amount of credits will select in random order.
- You can select a room beginning with your time and up until the end of the process. https://reslife.uconn.edu/living-on-campus/selecting_housing/
- You'll receive a selection time in that will be listed in your MyHousing portal.
- You can select housing with another campus change approved student or a Storrs student, as long as they are eligible and also participating in selection.
- Once you choose, you cannot change your selection, so don't rush and choose wisely!

Some things to consider when planning to select your room...

- It is important to have realistic expectations for your selection time.
- For traditional single rooms, a medical accommodation is required through the Center for Students with Disabilities.
- There are not enough apartment spaces for the entire senior class.
- The more roommates you are paired with, the tougher it will be to find a space. You can select with up to 5 roommates but as spaces are selected, there will be fewer options with 6 spaces available together.
- Consider multiple options for your selection. If you cannot find a suite for 6 of you together, how will you split your group? Or, if you cannot find a specific room number, think of other rooms you might be interested in.
- Consider location vs. roommates and what is more important to you; room type and location or the person you live with.
